Rediscover the Unique Perspective on Education at Francis-Stevens

Located in the exciting DC neighborhood of Foggy Bottom, Francis-Stevens gives students a universal education. Steps from the World Bank and other Washington institutions, students at Francis-Stevens Educational Campus experience the best language, critical reading, and math instruction.

Rooted in the Past, Looking Toward the Future

Francis and Stevens are among the most historic schools in the District of Columbia. Stevens was built in 1868 as one of the first publicly funded schools for black children, while the Francis building was constructed in 1927 as a junior high school. The two schools consolidated to become Francis-Stevens Education Campus, which now proudly serves students from Pre-Kindergarten through 8th grade.

“I have great friends in this school. Our teachers and tutors make learning fun.”

— Sharron Gross, 6th grader

Excellent Educators Make for an Excellent Education

Francis-Stevens strives to provide an exemplary model of education to all students. Teachers not only share the vision but demonstrate it daily.

- 100% of Francis-Stevens teachers are state-certified.
- 95% of Francis-Stevens teachers hold an advanced degree.
- Francis-Stevens teachers and outside educators provide extra learning opportunities through programs such as Best Friends Foundation, City Year Whole School Whole Child, DC Reads, Everybody Wins, GWU Street Law, and Live it-Learn it field trips.
- Teachers provide before and after-school care.

Unique Education Within a Distinctive City

In the heart of DC, Francis-Stevens takes advantage of all the wonderful learning opportunities the city offers. Partnerships with both governmental and educational organizations foster unique and innovative experiences for Francis-Stevens students.
